

DAY 15 (TECHNICALLY)

So, the reason I put 'technically' is because the last few days we haven't been in school. I'm sure you would have noticed there hasn't been a blog update for a few days.

So today there is some BIG NEWS...

Earlier this morning, I (Eleanor Price) was featured in a live radio interview on Radio Tamworth. This is all because of my blog! Take a look down below to see how it all began.

First is first

First of all, we need to get the beginning right. It was my first day coming into school after my parents had told me they were keyworkers and I would be going into school. This is when I came up with the idea to start interviewing people and putting events into a diary but then I had an even better idea... a BLOG!! This is where it really starts....

The beginning

After I had finished my blog, Mr. Russell uploaded it onto the Anker Moor website for people to read. Then, a few days later, he emailed the Herald to see if they were interested in a story about my blog... THEY WERE! So, a couple days ago they released this story; have a look:

The next step

So, now for my latest news! Earlier this morning, I had a call from radio Tamworth and they said they wanted to interview me live. I was so freaked at first but soon enough I was live and my family, youth group and friends were all listening not to mention total strangers! They asked me a few questions and I answered very well, I think!? I often listen to the radio and celebrities or other people being interviewed (when I'm listening) but this morning I was on there and people were listening to me!!

Let's hear Mr. Russell's thoughts:

How do you feel that one of your Anker Moor pupils were featured live on Radio Tamworth?

Mr. Russell stated, 'I feel very proud, I haven't listened to the radio report yet but I know Eleanor would have made pupils, staff and her family extremely proud of her amazing efforts! She deserves the praise and has worked very hard to ensure that she captures school life from the otherside.'

Is there anything else you would like to share?

'Yes, I'd just like to say how well the children in school have coped with the situation that we are faced with. They have been excellent and have considered activities that they'd like to complete alongside activities the staff have set up for them. I hope this positivity continues despite the current situation we are faced with.'

In a couple of days, Eleanor will be representing Anker Moor on the BBC WM Breakfast Show. She will be posed with a series of questions that she will have to answer about the current situation. Obviously, Eleanor will be sharing her blog linked to the 'in school superstars' page. I hope that she makes herself and her school proud when she does the interview.

Now the teachers

How do you feel that one of the Anker Moor pupils were featured on the radio?

Miss. Walker, 'Ah, I think I can speak for everyone when I say we are really, really proud of you Eleanor. I think your hard work and your passion for letting everyone know what you're up to and what we're up to at school is such an impressive thing. I know all the teachers are really, really proud of this too – we are all very impressed!'

Don't forget to read my story in the Herald and thank you for listening to me on the radio this morning (if you did)!
